Storyline: One time Sarman asked his uncle Durjan (Nitish Bharadwaj) to allow him to go to Mohenjo Daro to trade with the barter system but Durjan refused. At night Sarman tries to slip to go with his friend Hojo (Umang Vyas) but they are captured by Durjan.

Durjan finally relented and allowed it. Durjan gave Sarman a charm in the form of a unicorn inscription that Sarman often saw in his dreams. Arriving at Mohenjo Daro, Sarman finds out the city is ruled by Maham (Kabir Bedi) and his evil son named Moonja (Arunoday Singh).

Sarman also learned that the unicorn in his dream was a symbol of the city which felt as if the city was very foreign to him. When Sarman traded, Maham made a proposal to impose additional taxes on farmers.
